In King County, equity is fundamental to the society we wish to build. Our end goal is for full and equal access to opportunities, power, and resources so that all people may achieve their full potential. The Children and Youth Advisory Board incorporates these values and has adopted its own equity statement. The CYAB works to build an inclusive board that includes the voices of underrepresented populations, people of color, immigrants and refugees, LGBTQ individuals, low-income households, youth, the elderly, rural residents, people living with disabilities and more.

Please describe your experience with and/or commitment to promoting equity. What opportunities do you see for the CYAB to incorporate the voice of all communities in King County?

As a board, I believe we have the obligation to promote opportunity pathways to youth and young people in our communities through access to education and employment. Young people need to know their futures are financially and socially secure, that they can benefit from diverse avenues of success no matter their zip code. I am passionate about social justice and equal opportunity, wanting the youth of our county to figure out their passions, and have sufficient and adequate support in their endeavors from their families, schools, communities, and government. I long for a King County that supports every child and parent from pregnancy to career. We as a society should be dedicated to that level of support, ensuring that every person has the opportunity and access needed for success and a high quality of life.
