AN ORDINANCE adopting the 2007 Annual Budget and making appropriations for the operation of county agencies and departments and capital improvements for the fiscal year beginning January 1, 2007, and ending December 31, 2007.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF KING COUNTY:

SECTION 1. Findings. The council makes the following findings of fact:

A. King County government is responsible for providing a variety of services to all residents of the county. These include: regional services, such as criminal justice, public health, wastewater treatment and public transportation; subregional services through contracts with many suburban cities for police protection, jail services and municipal court services; and local services to unincorporated areas, such as police protection, roads, surface water management, local parks and land use regulation.

B. As the legislative branch of government, the metropolitan King County council sets policy for the county. It funds county services through the exercise of its authority to adopt an annual budget for the county. To provide these services, the council has adopted a 2007 budget totaling $3.86 billion, of which $628 million is in the general fund. This represents a total reduction of $24 million less than proposed by the county executive.

C. Citizens expect fiscal integrity and accountability in the use of their tax dollars. The Council meets that demand by spending less, saving more, and prioritizing expenditures. This adopted budget reduces general fund expenditures from the executive proposed budget by $4 million, and increases general fund reserves over the executive proposed by $4 million.

D. The county's prudent financial management and low level of debt have earned the highest possible bond ratings of AAA from all three major rating agencies: Standard & Poor's; Moody's Investors Service; and Fitch Ratings. The 2007 budget continues to implement long-standing financial policies that limit debt levels and maintain healthy general fund reserves. As a result, King County finances capital projects at lower interest rates, saving taxpayers' money on the cost of debt service.

E. The council on October 9, 2006, approved Motion 12367 adopting the priorities of King County for the 2007 King County budget, known as "Priorities for People." This budget funds programs consistent with those priorities. The three top priorities are earning public trust, enhancing quality of life, and protecting public health and safety.

F. Earning Public Trust: The county's budget advances sound financial policies and prudently manages the public's money, engages citizens in oversight of government services, strives for excellence in customer service, and measures our performance. This budget includes the following new measures that support these priorities:

1. Citizen Engagement. The county's budget prioritizes those services that are most important to county residents by funding an initiative to engage county citizens in developing countywide priorities for their county government. In 2007, the council will conduct workshops with citizens to enable them to prioritize their county services on a broad level. The council will report back to the public on the countywide priorities citizens identify. The report will guide alignment of county services to the priorities of the people and will be adopted as a policy directive for development of the executive's 2008 proposed budget. The council will also develop a process for continued citizen engagement with regular reports back to the public.

2. Office of Law Enforcement Oversight. The budget funds a new legislative branch agency created by Ordinance 15611 to enhance public trust in the resolution of citizen complaints of misconduct involving deputies in the King County sheriff's office. The independent civilian agency is empowered with auditing authority and an option for voluntary mediation, and is the result of nine months of intensive work by the council's law, justice and human services committee and by the sheriff's volunteer blue-ribbon panel.

3. Sheriff's office. Through Motion 12337, the council accepted the sheriff's blue-ribbon panel report, which contained forty-three findings relating to leadership, supervision, performance reviews, complaint handling, organizational structure, internal oversight and public trust in the sheriff's office. The council funds several of the most critical recommendations from that report, including the office of law enforcement oversight, enhanced deputy sheriff supervision, money for improved recruiting, and resources for a comprehensive human resources plan. A dedicated reserve to fund potential costs of new sergeants in 2007 or future years is also created.

4. Office of Economic and Financial Analysis. A new office to ensure accountability to the public through the advancement of sound financial policies based on objective and transparent financial analysis and reporting is included in the council's budget. The council will develop options for establishing a new process for producing official economic and revenue forecasts for King County to ensure sound fiscal practices.

5. Financial Policies Advisory Task Force. In connection with this budget, the council has created an expert panel to review the financial and debt policies of King County, including policies that call for maintaining adequate reserves and the prudent issuance of debt. Sound financial policies adopted by the council in 1983, 1987, 1991, and 2000 have led the major credit rating agencies to award King County AAA bond ratings, the highest possible. However, a comprehensive review of these and other financial policies is needed. The task force will consist of five members who are experts in the industry and who will be selected based upon their knowledge of government budgeting and finance. Members will review financial and debt policies previously adopted by the council as well as informal policies put into practice by executive agencies. They will also examine best practices in financial planning and make recommendations to the council in each of these areas.

6. Adopting general fund financial plan and increasing reserve funds. To meet the council's goals of spending less, saving more, and prioritizing expenditures, the council deems it essential to maintain appropriate reserves that are funded by revenues received in excess of predicted revenue and expenditures less than budgeted. The council finds that, based on historical patterns, actual revenues to the current expense fund in 2006 are likely to exceed those estimated in the financial plan transmitted by the executive, and actual expenditures are likely to be less. This budget adopts the 2007 general fund financial plan and requires the executive to maintain and adequately fund reserves for important county priorities, as set forth in this budget and financial plan. As the policy-making body of the county it is appropriate that the council authorize the creation of reserves and any spending from reserves needed to fund county priorities.

7. Elections Oversight. The council in June 2006 voted to make King County the largest local jurisdiction in the nation to conduct all elections by mail, once the infrastructure and management are in place to accomplish it. This budget adds $1.05 million for the continued transition to vote-by-mail, but restricts funding until the executive submits and the council approves a detailed implementation plan for that transition. The executive is also required to submit: an up-to-date election security plan, which was requested by the council by July 31, 2006, but has not yet been received; and a plan for further improving and maintaining voter registration records, which was due August 15, 2006, and has not yet been received. This budget provides an additional $737,472 for increased elections security and reliability and places into reserve an additional $961,645.

8. Capital Project Oversight Pilot Project. The council's budget funds a new function within the King County Auditor's office to oversee King County's large capital construction projects, with the mission of controlling cost overruns and unforeseen expansion of project scopes, schedules and budgets, as has been experienced on other King County projects in the past year. The office will be a pilot project for 2007. It will reside in the oversight and performance assurance section within the King County auditor's office, which is an independent agency of the legislative branch. The office will be staffed by two term-limited employees overseeing the work of expert consultants who will provide independent oversight and performance assurance on four priority capital projects: the Harborview Ninth and Jefferson Building, the Brightwater treatment plant, the King County Jail's Integrated Security project and Jail Health project and the Accountable Business Transformation project for integration of payroll, finance, human resource and budget management. The office will also evaluate county-mandated procurement practices.

9. Animal Services Oversight. A section of this budget ordinance requires the executive to engage citizens in the oversight of King County animal services through reconstitution of the animal control citizen's advisory committee. This budget also requires the executive to deliver a report on opportunities to improve enforcement of animal cruelty laws in King County as called for by Motion 12297, passed June 5, 2006.

10. Technology Savings and Oversight. The council's 2007 budget expands on council oversight of information technology by requiring a public report measuring the success of technology capital projects in achieving promised benefits, such as cost savings. Fiscal oversight of several information technology projects is tightened and $4 million is saved by eliminating requests that the council determined to be unjustified. This budget also requires updated business cases for oversight of two operating areas of county information technology operations: printing and graphics and the institutional fiber-optic cable network.

11. Facilities Savings. Council direction has saved $1.6 million by requiring the purchase of used furniture, rather than new, for the new county office building.

12. Fiscal Accountability for Major Capital Projects. The cost of commodities are driving up the costs of major capital improvement projects. While the commodities market is outside the control of King County, assuring best practices in the management of these projects is not. The County Auditor will be undertaking a performance audit of the development and management of major capital projects overseen by the facilities management division. This performance audit is aimed at identifying best practices and ensuring that the county use these practices in the management of our capital improvement program.

G. Enhancing the Quality of Life: The council's budget: improves mobility for people, vehicles and freight; takes good care of the environment and manages growth wisely; and creates and encourages vibrant cultural and recreational opportunities. This budget supports these priorities through adoption of the following measures:

1. Metro Transit. In addition to supporting the overall budget for transit services, this budget enhances the rider experience by: expanding the bus shelter construction program by fifty percent, enabling transit to build at least one hundred new bus shelters per year; phasing out advertising wrapping that covers the windows of Metro buses in response to rider complaints; and restoring funding for installation of scrolling interior electronic readerboards announcing "next stop" information to riders.

2. Open Space. The council's budget follows through on recommendations from the conservation futures citizen oversight committee for open space acquisitions and provides cities with matching funds to allow communities throughout King County to enjoy the benefits of open space.

3. Recreation. Funding is provided to expand the regional trail system, address safety concerns, upgrade ball fields and improve audio-visual equipment at the King County aquatic center. The council's policy of transferring recreational facilities to the appropriate local jurisdiction is carried out in this budget through transfer of the King County Fairgrounds to the city of Enumclaw, allowing the city to enhance the recreational value of the facility with development of an equestrian center.

4. Waste-to-Energy. King County is in the midst of a process to determine how to dispose of solid waste in the future, a decision with long-term ramifications. The council's budget funds a study that will involve solid waste advisory groups and partner cities in examining the full range of options, including waste-to-energy technology. The study will look at costs, environmental impacts, the market for energy generated, and related issues.

5. Rural Economic Development. The executive will be required to develop proposed rural economic development policies for council review and approval in 2007.

6. Noxious Weeds. In light of the county's role as an active land owner and steward of the public trust, the council's budget supports a study to examine the effectiveness of the management of noxious weeds on county-owned land, and ensure that the county is not contributing to their spread. Current levels of technical support to land owners countywide to help them control the spread of noxious weeds are maintained, with no increase in fees.

7. Annexation Incentives Reserve. The Council has adopted policy to guide annexation or incorporation of urban unincorporated areas to ensure our investments have the most long-term benefit. This budget holds $3.15 million of annexation incentives in reserve until the requirements of county policy are met.

H. Protecting Public Health and Safety: The council's 2007 budget invests in prevention to reduce crime and the cost of detention, promotes conditions for optimal physical and mental health, sustains critical health and human service programs and prepares our community for natural disasters and public health emergencies. The council's budget supports these priorities through adoption of the following measures:

1. Prevention over Detention. Resources to maintain and expand implementation of the council's successful Adult Justice Operational Master Plan ("AJOMP") and Juvenile Justice Operational Master Plan ("JJOMP") are added. These plans call on the county's law and justice agencies to reduce the costs of secure detention through the use of alternatives to detention, treatment programs, and process improvements. Alternatives to secure detention implemented through AJOMP and JJOMP are being utilized at rates much higher than expected. As a result, this budget funds planning efforts to ensure that these programs can grow and the county can continue to reap savings from lower jail population and reduced crime. It also funds adult learning programs that promote life skills and reduce reoffending.

2. Public Health. The council has spearheaded a strategic planning process known as the Public Health Operational Master Plan ("PHOMP") to develop a long-term sustainable strategy for public health in King County. This budget asks that the PHOMP examine options for restructuring health care services provided by the department of public health. The council finds that the current model for delivery of clinical services is not financially sustainable and that there are opportunities to achieve better health outcomes by coordinating with the community health care safety net to produce a more effective system of care. Pending the work of the PHOMP, $7.8 million is included in the budget to ensure two public health centers in North King County can continue operating until June 30, 2007 and creates a designated reserve to continue the operation of the centers for all of 2007 to allow time for a transition plan to be developed.

3. Human Services. Controlling the costs of the criminal justice system in this and prior years allows the county to sustain support for human services and provide a cost of living adjustment to providers for the first time in ten years.

4. Veterans and Human Services Levy. Investment of the first proceeds of a voter-approved levy the council placed on the ballot in November 2005 is included in the budget. These investments in service and housing improvements will prevent and reduce homelessness and involvement in the criminal justice system for vulnerable veterans and others in need.

5. Therapeutic Courts. This budget adds resources to expand the county's therapeutic courts, which include family therapeutic court, juvenile drug court and adult drug court.

I. The 2007 budget embodies years of previous council policy direction and coordination that have stabilized criminal justice spending, created priorities for human services, implemented best business practices, instituted strategic planning and performance measurement, initiated strategic analysis of technology projects, and laid the foundation for prudent fiscal management. The outcomes of these strategic policies are seen in ongoing levels of efficiencies and cost savings in the current budget. These efficiencies and savings can be seen in the following ways:

1. Criminal Justice Cost Containment. Prior to council adoption of AJOMP and JJOMP, the county's criminal justice budget was growing faster than the revenues available to the general fund, thereby reducing the ability to maintain or improve services in the general government and health and human services areas. By one projection, the cost of criminal justice would have consumed the entire general fund budget by 2008. Instead, council-enacted policies have contained the costs of criminal justice to a relatively steady seventy percent of general fund revenues. As a direct result of past council action, the county has saved $4 million to $10 million in 2007.

2. Lower Adult Detention. This budget benefits from past investments to reduce secure detention population, reduce recidivism through treatment, and improve criminal case processing efficiency. In 2000, the executive projected that the adult secure jail average daily population ("ADP") would exceed three thousand seven hundred by 2007. Instead, this budget appropriates funds for an adult jail ADP of two thousand five hundred five. Absent the council's policies the county would have had to build a new jail costing $5 million to $20 million annually for operations and $40 to $120 million in capital costs.

3. Lower Juvenile Detention. Likewise, implementation of JJOMP has led to a juvenile detention ADP that is half of what it was. This budget maintains existing juvenile justice programs and also continues the council's policy direction on program sustainability. In 2005, the council directed the executive to ensure that proven and effective programs receive sustained sources of funding after grants or pilot project funding runs out. The goal was to ensure that the county maintains effective programs and continues to reap the benefits of reduced detention costs. The county has saved $3 million each year since 2002 as a result of these policies.

4. Higher Use of Alternatives to Incarceration. The success of alternatives to secure detention through the department's community corrections division is demonstrated by utilization rates that are much higher than projected. Each day nearly one thousand offenders receive services through alternatives to secure detention programs rather than being in jail - ten times the number using those alternatives in 2000. The county's day reporting programs, known as Community Center for Alternative Programs were projected to have an average of ninety-nine participants per day in 2006. Instead, those programs have grown to an average of more than two hundred participants per day through September 2006, with all of the division's programs showing similar success in providing alternatives to incarceration. These programs have allowed the county to avoid almost $3 million in detention costs annually.

5. Technology Oversight. The Council-adopted technology governance process protects the public's investment in information technology by establishing a process for oversight and standards for all information technology projects undertaken in the county. Prior to council adoption of a governance process for information technology projects, the county's investments in technology lacked a strategic, comprehensive approach. For example, all technology projects countywide are now required to follow the best practices in IT project management and are tracked centrally.

6. Assessor. The council's strategic investments for information technology in the Assessor's office have increased county revenues by timely capturing property taxes on new construction, with efficiencies that have enabled reduction in this budget of four administrative positions for a savings of $273,722 annually.

7. District Courts. The council initiated an Operational Master Plan within King County District Court to address court efficiencies and ensure access to justice. One of the many initiatives coming from that OMP led to implementation of the District Court Electronic Records project that received a national award for innovation of the year.

8. Financial Policies. The council has adopted sound financial policies over the years that continue to save taxpayers money through lower interest rates in the financing of capital projects. These policies include: Motion 5888 in 1983, which required minimum levels of fund balance in the county's current expense fund; Motion 7020 in 1987, which dedicated a portion of additional sales tax revenues to the creation of a sales tax reserve to be used for financial emergencies; Motions 8352 and 8446 in 1991, which reaffirmed the council's intent that the sales tax reserve be used for financial emergencies; and Motion 11196 in 2000, which enacted the King County General Fund Debt Policy and outlined practices for the issuance and management of debt.

J. It is the intent of the metropolitan King County council that its policies be implemented through the 2007 King County Budget Ordinance.

SECTION 2. Effect of proviso or expenditure restriction veto. It is hereby declared to be the legislative intent of the council that a veto of any proviso or expenditure restriction that conditions the expenditure of a stated dollar amount or the use of FTE authority upon the performance of a specific action by an agency shall thereby reduce the appropriation authority to that agency by the stated dollar or FTE amount.

If lack of access to health care is determined to be one of the major factors leading to health problems for children, the report shall also identify: (1) the barriers that prevent children from achieving consistent access to health care, including preventive, primary, specialty, emergency and hospital care; (2) the infrastructure and practices needed in the health care and insurance systems to ensure that children have consistent access to preventive care and a medical home; and (3) the options regarding the role the department of public health can play in overcoming barriers to consistent access to health care and in creating, coordinating and fostering these health care and insurance system reforms, including through working with other governments and private sector organizations.
