

for police, which officials say is attributable to the statewide restrictions on police vehicular pursuits, and

WHEREAS, drivers fleeing from police or otherwise failing to yield to a lawful command endangers the health and safety of other drivers on the road, the police, innocent bystanders and the drivers themselves, and

WHEREAS, to protect public safety and reduce failure to yield instances, police officers need clear guidelines that allow for engagement in reasonable vehicular pursuits;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT MOVED by the Council of King County:

A. The council requests the King County executive, in collaboration with the King County sheriff's office and local contract cities, develop safe and effective guidelines for police vehicular pursuits that are to be included in the King County 2023 state legislative agenda and to provide a report.

B. The report should include, but not be limited to:

1. A description of how changes in state law restricting vehicular pursuits have impacted the sheriff's office response to fleeing suspects or crimes in progress, including data on failure-to-yield instances and statements from deputies, sheriff staff, 911 dispatch operators and other emergency response providers; and

2. A description of the guidelines for police vehicular pursuits that are to be included in the King County 2023 state legislative agenda.

C.1. The King County executive should electronically file the report no later than September 1, 2022, with the clerk of the council, who shall retain the original and provide an electronic copy to all councilmembers and the lead staff of the law, justice, health, and human services committee, or its successor.

2. The executive should present the final police vehicular pursuit report to the law, justice, health and human services committee, or its successor, no later than September 6, 2022.
