AN ORDINANCE establishing an advisory committee to engage community stakeholders regarding the selection, appointment and confirmation of the chief officer for the department of public safety and matters pertaining to the department of public safety.

STATEMENT OF FACTS:

1. In November 2020, the voters of King County approved Charter Amendment No.5, returning the King County sheriff to an appointed position with a requirement for consideration of community stakeholder input during the selection, appointment and confirmation process to be prescribed by county ordinance.
2. In November 2020, the voters of King County approved Charter Amendment No.6, allowing the duties of the chief officer of the department of public safety, who may also be referred to as the county sheriff, and the duties and structure of the department of public safety to be established by county ordinance.

3. In November 2020, the adoption of the 2021-2022 Biennial Budget Ordinance, Ordinance 19210, set the maximum biennial appropriation for the department of public safety at approximately four hundred and nine million dollars with a maximum of one thousand ninety-five full time equivalent positions.

4. The department of public safety has an active role providing and participating in regional services and activities including bomb disposal, search and rescue, homicide investigations, civil and criminal warrants, sex offender registration, dignitary protection, the automated fingerprint identification system, intelligence services and the joint terrorism task force.

5. The department of public safety is the police department for unincorporated King County, which includes nearly 250,000 residents over a wide-ranging geographic area that encompasses dense urban areas, such as Skyway and White Center, and sparsely populated rural areas, such as Vashon Island and rural east King County.

6. The county contracts with twelve cities and the Muckleshoot Indian Tribe to provide law enforcement services to their approximately three hundred thousand residents through the department of public safety. Combined, those contracts were approximately thirty six percent of the department of public safety's budget for the 2019-2020 biennium and are an important part of the department's operations.

7. In accordance with the interlocal agreements for law enforcement services, the cities and county have formed an oversight committee, responsible for ensuring compliance with the terms of the interlocal agreement.

8. The county also provides public safety services for transportation agencies, including the King County International Airport, the Metro transit department and the Central Puget Sound Regional Transit Authority, which is also known as Sound Transit. Combined, providing those services represented approximately eighteen percent of the department of public safety's budget for the 2019-2020 biennium and require unique services along bus and light rail lines and at transit stations.

9. The department of public safety has faced reductions over the past decades and creates challenges for the vision of public safety the county hopes to uphold.

10. Since the tragic killing of George Floyd by a police officer on May 25, 2020, in Minneapolis, Minnesota, the Black Lives Matter movement has been at the forefront of protests, rallies, marches and demonstrations calling for an end to structural racism and to restructuring law enforcement as it has been traditionally practiced in King County and across the United States.

11. Safety for all requires that the county explores new alternatives to incarceration and alternatives to armed police response to some calls for service. Alternative emergency response models could include but are not limited to mental health responders, conflict resolution teams and trauma-informed violence interruption initiatives.

12. The council and the executive desire an open, transparent and inclusive process to review and update the structure and duties of the department of public safety and to appoint a new county sheriff.

13. The council and the executive will engage with a wide ranging and diverse group of community stakeholders, contract cities and other partners, to understand the needs of the communities served by the department of public safety.

14. The county is committed to continuing its long-established partnership with labor unions, including sworn and civilian bargaining units.

15. The county is committed to providing efficient, effective and equitable public safety services in the unincorporated areas and in the contract entities.

16. The county is committed to maintaining and enhancing public safety for all its residents.
